Although there has been considerable research in the area of women's sport and the media, less work has examined media coverage of women's football. Christopherson et al.'s (2002: 182) research on media coverage of the 1999 Women's World Cup US team found that there were contradictory messages around women and sports. Paradoxically, players were presented as 'nice' and 'feminine' women who could simultaneously be 'strong' and 'muscular' with heterosexual sex appeal ...
